Upland fines and police fees more costly now

By ANDREA ADELSON
Staff Writer

Watch out for black-and-whites when parking on Upland streets.

The officers driving them will be handing out parking tickets to offenders next month that carry a stiffer penalty than any other in the West Valley.

Upland's City Council this week approved raising fees for violations from $12 to $15, and hiked charges for other police services, such as fingerprinting, effective April 1.

The hikes are meant to bring Upland's charges in line with neighboring cities' fees and to recover actual costs of providing the services, Police Chief Coy Estes said.

Only Upland High School student Craig Duncan protested. "That's a pretty hefty chunk (of income) for having a tire on the sidewalk," he said.

Fees for municipal code violations are set by the city and go up in most cities after an initial time limit, as an incentive to pay more quickly. Chino and Pomona charge $10, Montclair $12 and Fontana $11.50.

Last year, carrying out police services cost Upland $15,000 more than it recovered, Estes said. Revised fees will generate nearly $45,000 in fiscal 1982-83, adequate to pay for providing the services, Estes said.

For the first time, Upland's parking fines will carry a monetary incentive to pay quickly, with fines for autos and commercial vehicles doubling if not paid after a 10-day grace period.

The fine structure is intended to cut out second warning notices, mailed after 21 days on about 40 percent of the 1,842 citations issued in 1981-82, says a report from Phil Yenovkian, a police administrative assistant.

"There is a relationship between fines and enforcement," he said, and tickets seem to prevent parking violations.

"When we raise the cost of services, it's not to see what the market will bear, but to cover costs," Yenovkian said.

Library gets help to collect fines

The Upland Public Library is beginning a new policy of sending names of patrons who fail to return books to a collection agency.

The new practice will be aimed at those library users who check out books and, over a long period of time, refuse to return them. Those who return books a few days late need not worry.

Notices and bills have been sent out since Feb. 1 announcing the new policy.

These bills include the cost of the book, fines computed on a daily basis up to the cost of the book or the date books were reported missing, and an administrative charge of eight dollars. When three or four books are missing, these charges can easily add up to $150 or $200.

A big part of the library's problem has been the increase in the cost of books. Replacement costs for hardcover nonfiction now run $21.65; for hardcover fiction, $14.75; for trade paperbacks, $9.70; for catalogued paperbacks, $2.45; and for childrens' hardcover books, $8.30. These costs are taken each year from Publishers Weekly, the publishing industry's major journal.

Already this year, the library's cost for books not returned is $12,000. This figure has zoomed out of control in the past few years, and the library's new policy of using a collection agency to recover this money is in response to the high losses.

Founder's Day highlights Centennial celebration

By MATT COKER
Staff Writer

Founder's Day will serve as the centerpiece of Chaffey College's weeklong Centennial celebration.

Gala events directed toward community involvement are planned to bring Chaffey College closer to those who have supported it through its 100-year history.

Today's Founder's Day activities begin at 12:45 p.m. with a full academic procession, featuring college regalia.

Music for the Centennial Founder's Pageant will be provided by Alta Loma High School's Concert Band and the Chaffey College Choir.

Direct greetings will be presented by representatives from the President's Office at the University of Southern California and the Vice-Chancellor's Office of the University of California system.

About 1:30 p.m., new Chaffey College banners will be displayed and a portrait of founder George Chaffey will be unveiled.

The featured event of the day will be the gathering of the college's "founding fathers." Three former Chaffey College presidents will greet the audience. Past deans, instructors and students will also be on hand.

Harriet Chaffey Payne, the 92-year-old daughter of George Chaffey's brother Charles, is also scheduled to appear.

Members of the Merton E. Hill family will be present and there are hopes Hill, president of the college after its reorganization in 1916, will attend.

The day's major address will come from Gerald Heywood, the state chancellor of the community college system. Heywood will host a reception following his speech and an exhibit of the school's history will be opening in the Museum Gallery.

Also not previously announced is the fashion show featuring period dress of the late 1800s at 5 p.m. Friday.

The greatest response to Centennial plans has been for Saturday's events. There are already more than 100 reservations for the introduction of the Class of 1933, and 2,000 people are expected to attend the Jazz Festival and another 1,000 are expected to tour the college during Open House.

Sunday's "Musical Jubilee" featuring the Chaffey College Dancers, the Jazz Ensemble and Rancho Cucamonga's Bonner Family singers will appear twice — at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. — and not 2 to 6 p.m. as originally reported.

District settles charges of discrimination

By NANCY WALLACE
Staff Writer

The Chaffey Joint Union High School District resolved a nearly 7-year-old conflict this week as trustees authorized a $4,500 check to an employee who charged she was discriminated against on the basis on sex.

Laurel Johnson, now a substitute teacher for the district, applied for a management post in the district's summer swim program in 1976. When she was not selected, she filed charges with the Office of Civil Rights, alleging the district denied her the job because she is a woman.

Tim Spofford, OCR regional director in San Francisco, said records show an investigation by OCR supported Johnson's charges of discrimination on the basis of sex. OCR issued a letter to the district on its findings; the step should have been to either assist the district in settling the dispute with the employee, or proceed with a hearing.

OCR left the case unsettled until now because the U.S. Supreme Court had not ruled that Title IX applied to employees as well as students.

The Supreme Court addressed the question last May, ruling in North Haven Board of Education vs. Bell that anti-discrimination clauses in Title IX apply to school employees.

The decision, in effect, gave the OCR the necessary jurisdiction to settle charges of discrimination by public school employees, Spofford said. Soon after, OCR began to resolve cases such as Johnson's — cases left in limbo until 1982.

Dean Smothers, assistant superintendent of personnel for the district, explained the board did not admit guilt by settling with Johnson for $4,500. Instead, the trustees reasoned that such a settlement would save the district money, since a hearing would cost far more in attorneys' fees.

Had Johnson not agreed to release her complaint for the $4,500 figure, Smothers said, the district may have gone to court to defend its hiring practices in 1976.

Although unlikely, the district could have lost its federal funding if the case went to court. Spofford explained that, had the district lost its case, a judge could have ruled that the district be denied all federal monies.

Johnson was not available for comment.

Ontario's Euclid Avenue will be closed to construct underpass

By STEVE SCAUZILLO
Staff Writer

Euclid Avenue, Ontario's main thoroughfare, will be closed between Mission and Holt boulevards for construction of a railroad underpass beginning Monday at 9 a.m., The California Department of Transportation announced today.

Major construction lasting between 13 and 19 months is set to start on the scenic state highway shortly after the barricades are in place, said Joe Warren, Caltrans project engineer.

The exact duration of the project that will lower the six-lane highway beneath the Union and Southern Pacific railroad tracks "is anybody's guess," said Warren.

During the closure, traffic will be detoured on Holt Boulevard, east to Campus Avenue and west to Vine Avenue.

South of the site, motorists can travel east and west on Mission Boulevard to Campus and Vine.

Heavy rains which delayed the start of the project by several weeks are in the forecast again.

But Warren said preliminary work, such as the re-surfacing of the alternate routes, should be completed before the first raindrops fall.

"We are finishing up the paving today. I don't see any problems," he said.

He blamed delays on the weather and the railroad companies. "But the weather has been our big bugaboo."

Honorary service awards given

Jan Kruger and Juanita Partington of Sycamore Elementary School in Upland were awarded the honorary service award by the Sycamore PTA.

Kruger was recognized for her years of service in the PTA.

Partington was honored for her activities with the school and the PTA, including securing a grant from Kodak, organization a school photography club, and chairing the PTA's movie and television review committee. She is an AYSO team mother, and has 24 years teaching experience.

Walnut High School play slated

Walnut High School's Fine Arts Department is presenting its spring production, David Campton's improvisational comedy, "The Life and Death of Almost Everybody," tonight, Friday, Saturday and March 24, 25 and 26 in the school multi-purpose room. The Thursday performances are at 7:30 p.m.; all other are at 8:30 p.m.

The play, an allegory of man's evolving relationship with himself and with his God, features Brad Hwang, of Diamond Bar, in the role of the Sweeper, caretaker of an empty stage with a strong drift toward imaginative risk taking.

His imaginative risks soon bear characters as diverse as Adam and Eve and the crowds at the crucifixion — portrayed by an improvisational troupe of Walnut High School Thespians.

Tickets may be purchased the evening of the performance at $2 for children under 12, $3 for students and $4 for adults.
